For example, having two homes gives me, what I think is, the best (and also worst) of both worlds. Like I said, I used to detest the country. It was too slow, too routine; I wanted to live in New York. I had to live in New York. I was sick of strip malls and super-market monopolies, I wanted quaint boutiques and farmers markets and people ...

we have two homes, one in Canada and the other one in Florida. We spend six months at each. I love the idea of leaving for Florida as soon as winter approaches and not having to face our bitterly cold winters. By the time we are ready to return to Canada, the weather is getting very hot in Florida and I am ready to see the kids and grandkids.
