Sunny Meadows Flower Farm

Baumsteiger and her husband, Edwin Rambuski, wholeheartedly say that flower farming is economically feasible for small farmers. They grow a variety of cut flowers for market, as well as a wide variety of fruits and vegetables. Like many flower farmers, Baumsteiger uses a drip-irrigation system to maximize water efficiency. Drip systems deliver water directly to the roots, which keeps water off the flowers and leaves, helping improve the overall quality and often preventing disease.
